THE TIME TO SMILE.

BUCK UP, my boy. Don't be a squealer. Take your medicine for you know the laugh will come later when your liver is purged and the world will wear its sunniest smile. Here you have been bugging about the great Divide and at the first reverse your pedal extremities grow cold and you are led to think that the cerulean skies of the desert country are nothing better than a dose of indigo injected into the firmament for your undoing. The Divide is here to stay. The ups and downs of the stock market are nothing more than the capricious gusts of a summer squall which will clear off soon and leave you back where you started with a clear conscience and an undiminished bank roll. Tonopah is millions better off than it was three months ago and it will be still better off three months hence. The only trouble has been that we were all making money too fast. A temporary check on the buoyancy of stocks does not impair their intrinsic value. The mines are here in the making and they are being made as fast as men and money can throw the dirt out of the shafts that are going down by scores all through a section which six months ago was not worth a dollar an acre. Think of that before you do any more whining. This talk about the bottom having dropped out is poppycock. Tonopah is not engaged in margining stocks. Every holder of a share owns it without any mortgage to the banker or broker and all the proud possessor has to do is to hold on and wait for the tide to turn. The most avaricious old miser would be hugging himself blue in the face if he only enjoyed the prosperity this camp has shared during the past ninety days. Were it possible for the stock market to be wiped out absolutely and the thousands of shares of Divide stocks held here stripped to the last cent of their value it would not spell disaster as the pessimists would have one believe. Tonopah is on velvet. All stocks are paid for, thanks to the wise policy which obtained from the beginning whereby margin trading was rejected. More confidence and a smiling acceptance of conditions with an ever readiness to take on some of the good things offered on the bargain counter will bring back profits multiplied a thousand times.

It will be time to lament and cry out against the whims of fortune when you miss the long train of motor trucks that sally forth every morning from the railroad tracks headed for the Divide district laden with machinery, lumber, provisions and all the commodities that go to meet the requirements of a new mining district. If you feel depressed and in need of a little pep or ginger just step down to Main street in the early hours between 7 and 9 o'clock and observe the steel argosies that chug their way to the mines in the making and convince yourself that there has been no physical change in the prospects that preface the mines where hundreds of drills are pounding their way to the mineralized zone. Cast the horoscope for three months from now and try to visualize what is coming. Think of the scores of properties with their three or four millions of dollars safely deposited in solid Nevada banks consecrated to their development. That is the picture you should conjure instead of dwelling moodily on the ups and downs of a market whose vagaries have nothing in common with the real work of making mines.

A first page story in the Bonanza of yesterday has more actual encouragement for the investor than all the idle chatter that has been indulged on the curb and in the brokers' offices. This is the story of the company, fittingly named the Argonne Divide Mining company, christened for the first great victory of the Americans in the overseas warfare after the allies had been beaten to a standstill and the boys from the United States engaged in their first real battle as an aggregation of Americans and made such a valiant stand that the German hosts were halted everlastingly in their advance. Read between the lines. Get beneath the camouflage of a name and realize that this company represents the most successful mining corporation that ever ventured a dollar in Nevada mines since the halcyon days of the Comstock and extracted over $25,000,000 from the drab slopes of Mount Oddie in fourteen years of active existence. Remember that of this amount over $15,000,000 was returned to the stockholders in dividends. These are the capitalists who now dissemble under the title of the Argonne Divide. They are not wildcatting or dissipating their energies in an effort to make a front to save the face of Tonopah. They are going after ore which they know exists with as much certainty as they did when they sank the famous old shaft on the Mizpah. The biggest and best equipment that money can buy is already on the way to this group of claims. Three months from now the skeptics of today will be filled with amazement on looking back and recalling the timorous moments of the month of May when they hesitated and doubted the existence of the world's greatest and richest mineralized area at the back door of Tonopah. Take the personnel of the Belcher, Belcher Extension, Victory, Toggery, MacNamara Crescent, Oriental, Verdi, Revert, and other new companies and you will be impressed with the fact that not another mining camp on the surface of God's footstool attained such prestige in the brief space of time marking the life of the Divide. The constellation is dazzling. Such names as Wingfield, Brougher, Berry, Hayden-Stone, Jackling, Aldrich, Heller and Witcher and the directorate of the Tonopah Mining company were never before assembled in mass formation in any mining camp. Every one of them made his money in mining and every one of the bunch has given his unqualified endorsement to the claims of the Divide as possessing greater potentialities than any other district that has ever invited a dollar for development. The parent properties have completed installing the heaviest and most expensive equipment that money can buy with the purpose of quickening production. The Tonopah Divide, the Brougher Divide and the Gold Zone have lost none of their glory through installation of this efficiency making machinery while other companies are beginning the serious work of mine making by starting out with the best the market affords.

The foregoing epitomizes the situation and any knocker who can find a solitary shred of argument for wielding the hammer writes himself down as a fit subject for a conservator or with rooms to rent in his occipital domain.

NO TIME FOR PUSSY FOOTERS.

THE SALVATION of the country is to be found in a red blooded, militant and aggressive, plain spoken, courageous Republicanism. No one familiar with conditions throughout the country can be ignorant of the fact that the country is seething with resentment of Democratic incapacity and waste. This discontent will find expression some way. It will either turn the wheels of progress through the machinery of Republicanism, or it will collect in socialistic steam under the government boiler until it bursts Republicans do their party and their country no service when they deprecate plain speaking criticism of sins of omission and commission by the party in power which have heaped up the tax burdens of the people or who have sacrificed the safety of our soldiers on the field of battle. This is no time for milk and water Republicanism, party leaders must take an unequivocal position in behalf of the party fundamentals. Party success is something than electing some man to office. In fact no man or set of men is very important as compared with the great principles and policies for which a party worthy of the name contends in the arena of public opinion. This is the hour of sharply drawn issues, of well defined differences between the great parties and particularly between the Republican party and the foes of enlightened individualism, fervent nationalism and representative republican government.

PAROLE GRANTED

PERLEY MICKLE

An unconditional parole was granted Thursday by the board of pardons to Perley Mickle, condemned to serve a life sentence for criminal assault committed several years ago.

Mickle's case was one of the most interesting ever arising in the state. In addition to a life sentence the court ordered that he submit to an operation when Judge Farrington of the federal court held to come within the constitutional provision prohibiting the infliction of cruel and inhuman punishment.

Next week the board expects to take up the cases of Fred Skinner and Nimrod Urie, each under life sentences for murder.

On account of the fogs the seaplanes could not see plainly enough to all make the landing at the Azores as we read the news in the press.

Gardening note—If enough looks are planted among the other vegetables in the garden it is not necessary to use so much water for irrigation purposes.
